Obstruction By Design: Three Policies the Old Berkeley Heights BOE Changed to Create Chaos For the New BOE

Speculation aside, two uncontested community members ran for two open Board seats. This shift in Board members would throw the once-BOE majority into a 4-4 tie. Cause for concern for those existing members? It's hard to say, but the changes made to a few policies tell a unique story...Read More

When Facts Are Absent, Lies Will Do

Truth v. Tribalism - Lessons Learned

In the three years since the Berkeley Heights Public School District threw a significant part of my child's IEP out the window, I've learned a lot. In hindsight, maybe we should have quietly sued the district. Instead, I became vocal about observations, responses (or lack thereof) from administration, program and curriculum changes, and the doors to real communication being shut. Is my family better off for it? Hard to say....Read More
